Belief Statement

You are either going to be a caregiver or cared for. Therefore, the same community that took care of the child will be required to care for the adult, as they age well, from cradle to grace, for generations to come.

Certified Caregiver Coach & Dementia Caring Expert

Pastor Pat Bailey, certified belief therapist and dementia care practitioner, is a caregiver advocate, author, and community leader dedicated to strengthening families, corporations, and faith-based communities through education, empathy, and empowerment. A former caregiver to her dad and mom, she founded Finding New Tomorrows. As CEO, she has partnered with organizations like the Alzheimer's Association, Operation Enduring Brain Health (a veterans' dementia research study), ministries, fraternities, and sororities to expand culturally relevant caregiving support.

Currently, while caring for a sibling, she also serves as the marketing agency of record for a major DFW University and its $150 million NIH-funded Alzheimer's research study, having helped enroll over 3,000 Black and Hispanic participants. Her work has reached thousands through workshops, speaking engagements, and national collaborations—helping caregivers find strength, resources, and community while reshaping how aging and care are understood across generations to come.
